Butte Capitalists Looking in the Direction of Trail Creek.

A STRIKE IN THE COLONNA

The Local Paper There Gives an Interesting Account of the Development of That Promising Young Prospect.

Just at present Trail creek mines are making more furore among Butte people than anything else. Most all Butte men who engage in mining operations at all are interested in Trail creek or are getting interested.

Such being the case the following from the Trail Creek Miner, respecting property in which some Butte men are financially interested, is worthy of being read:

"A strike of great importance was made last Monday on the Colonna, a claim lying on the west side of Monte Christo hill, just north of the Monte Christo claim. The full significance of the discovery was not known till Thursday when assays were made of ore taken three feet below the surface. The Colonna was sold last week by the The Colonna was sold last week by the owners, George Pfunder, Brig Young and W. H. Lane, to Charles Schmidt of Butte, who purchased for himself and Louis Lienemann of that city. As soon as the sale was made George Pfunder was engaged to take charge of the development of the property. and he sent two or three men out to carefully prospect the ground.

"The Colonna occupies a steep de-clivity running from the Evening Star, which adjoins it on the east, down to the gulch separating Monte Christo hill from Red Mountain. The ground was all burned over last August by the forest fire which came so near destroy-ing the town of Rossland, hence it has a barren, desolate appearance. There is a considerable depth of soil and waste, loose rock, the former being of the usual yellowish tinge. There are no external indications of a ledge, and the ground was not taken up till last spring, so unpromising was it in appearance. pearance. After making numerous open cuts in which they found no indication of a ledge, the men made an opening at a point near the center of the claim and they had not gone into stain and ledge matter. It was but a streak at first, but widened out with each blow of the pick and some rich looking ore began to show itself. They had made considerable progress by Wednesday, when the first assays were had. Three samples showed $65, $33 and $38.20 in gold and an average of 37½ per cent. of copper. It was evident a rich body of ore had been found one of the richest ever discovered in the camp, the copper being the astonishing feature. Other samples were taken the following day, one of which showed $38 in gold and the other $84.80 in gold. This was even better than the first tests and aroused still deeper interest among those who knew of the discovery.
"Not enough work has been done to reveal the full extent of the vein. It appears to be about four feet deep at the bottom of the hole, and has the customary dip to the north, running east and west and parallel to the Monte Christo ledge a few hundred feet south. In what appears to be the center on the upper or east side, is a sec-tion of gonge and some tale. This, as it goes down, turns into black oxide of copper which lies in a loose, gravelly-like mass which can be scooped up by hand. This is rich both in gold and copper. On either side of this seam is copper. On either side of this seam is a body of ore of undetermined extent, carrying copper in various forms. Much of this is shot through with native copper, while other portions show copper glance or copper pyrites. It is certainly the most beautiful ore ever seen in the camp. It bears the external marks of its intrinsic worth.

"Mr. Pfunder set the men to work at various points farther down the hill where he thought they might accept the ledge, and they found it Thursday about 300 feet west of the first opening and a good deal to the north of a straight east and west line. Some surface strippings showed the ledge to be in place and to be of about the same extent and to carry about the same quality of ore as in the open cut above. It is therefore a reasonable inference that the strike is one of value-per-haps of very great value, and at least another illustration is afforded of the fact that discoveries are yet to be made in this immediate vicinity. This last discovery adds to the growing importance of Monte Cristo Hill, it being the home of the Iron Horse, the Evening Star, the Monte Cristo and the Colonna—all of very promising character. The Colonna vein strikes discelly toward the Evening Star and its rectly toward the Evening Star and its rich character affords additional evidence of the existence of a large central ledge of high grade ore on the latter property. Veins seems to run out from the Evening Star in many directions. They seem to be thrown out like lava streams from a central crater. This Colonna vein seems to be a big offshoot from the general root of a big offshoot from the general nest of ledges on the Evening Star ground, though much higher in copper than anthing yet found on that claim. All this, however, is more or less speculathis, nowever, is more or less specula-tive. The development work now going on will soon unravel the mystery of the Evening Star and its neighbors. Whatever the truth may be there can hardly be a question as to the perma-nent value of the strike on the Col-

THE INQUEST.

Three Victims Will Be Buried Here, One

Will Be Shipp d to at Paul. The inquest over the men who met so shocking a death while working on the Northern Pacific trestle was held yesterday morning, and a verdict arrived at. Seventeen workmen employ-ed on the bridge were brought to Butte to testify in the case. There was not much variation in the testimony given. much variation in the testimony given.
All had about the same idea of the causes which led to the accident. James
W. Forbis, attorney, was present to look after the interests of the Northern Pacific road, and occasionally ques-tioned a witness. A stenographer was also present to take the evidence down verbatim. After the witnesses had all been examined the jury retired and presently returned with this verdiet:

"That John W. McVarish died near bridge 81 on the Northern Pacific railroad, 10 miles southeast of Butte on the 14th day of October, 1895, and that Joseph Labram, Dan Harrison and men have enlisted.

John Holmes died at Murray & Freund's hospital, Butte, on the 15th day of October, 1895. The evidence given before the jury shows that the several crews of bridge builders under five different foremen have been engaged in the construction of a new gaged in the construction of a new bridge on the N. P. R. R. across Ship-pen's guich; that John McVarish was one of said foremen and had charge and control of a certain number of men, whose duty it was to put to-gether the framed timbers used in the gether the framed timbers used in the construction of said bridge, and erect the same. It is further shown by Foremen Frank Reid and George Moelock and some of the bridge builders who were immediately engaged at the place of accident that John McVarish had prepared and ordered prepared a certain then? to be used as a rear of 150 said bent' to be used as a part of the said bridge. It appears that all such bents should be, and previous to the particu-lar 14th day of October, 1895, had been, lar 14th day of October, 1895, had been, secured by 'sway braces' crossing the timbers diagonally and securely fastened with bolts and spikes. The evidence of the witnesses sworn and who testified as to the accident and its cause, say that Foreman John McVarish neglected to have the certain bent which fell percently search with the fell percently search with the statement when the certain bent which fell properly secured with sway brace and bolts and spikes, "Therefore, the verdict of this jury is that the death of John McVarish and his fellow workmen above named is attributed to his own neglect in not excessing or taking the proper precauercising or taking the proper precau-tionary measures to protect his and their lives.' W. M. Tuohy, the local agent of the Northern Pacific, has been telegraph-ing for two days trying to obtain infor-mation respecting the dead men, but has been unable to learn anything defi-nite respecting any of the men except Labram.

Labram's relatives live in St. Paul, and the body will be shipped there over the Northern Pacific at 7 o'clock this evening. Nothing has been heard concerning the relatives of the rest. They will be buried at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The funerals of McVarish and noon. The funerals of McVarish and Harrison will be held at Sherman's undertaking rooms and that of Holmes will be held from the Butte undertaking rooms. There will be one proces-sion for all the funerals. Work at the Northern Pacific trestle will be stopped for the day, and the 75 workmen there employed will attend the funeral.

JOE COLE'S CASE. It Is in Court and the Trial Is Now Fairly On.

Special Dispatch to the Standard. Bozeman, Oct. 16 .- When court conned at 10 o' the case set for that time was that of Joseph Cole, charged with an attempt to murder John Glesey on the evening of March 22 last, and also the more se rious charge of the murder of David Humphrey on the same evening. The circumstances are these: That upon the evening of March 22, 1895, some one shot at John Glesey through the window of his cabin, at his ranch, near Flathead pass, about 20 miles north of Bozeman, the bullet just touching the lobe of Mr. Giesey's ear, and that upon the same evening, and but a few minutes after the shot was fired at Mr. Glesey some one shot and killed Mr.

Humphrey. David Humphrey lived about a half mile from the Giesey ranch and hearing his dog barking and making a great fuss he stepped to the door of his house for the purpose of quieting him when the fatal shot was fired. The evidence is entirely circumstantial, but is very strong against the prisoner, no suspicion having rested upon any other party since the time of the shooting.

The entire forenoon yesterday was given to examining jurors, but, although the entire 24 who had been called were questioned, no choice of a single juror was made, and a special venire was issued by Judge Armstrong for 24 more to be present this morning at the opening of court at 10 o'clock.

The case against Cole of attempted murder has been continued until the next term of court, and the court will try the prisoner upon the charge of murder. Luce and Luce will defend the prisoner while Hartman and Hartman will assist County Attorney Holloway in the prosecution, having been retained for this purpose by the heirs of the murdered man.

To-day 12 jurors were chosen by noon and this afternoon two witnesses were examined for the prosecution and the third party also. The jurors are: E. D. Johnson, G. G. Johnson, Thomas Maxwell, Adam Marks, C. L. Davies, Thomas Newman, J. W. Eden, Alonzo Vanakin, E. L. Stowe, W. J. Crittenden, M. J. Flannery and Steve Newman. This is the most important case that has come up for trial in Gallatin county in the last 13 years.

Chinamen Must Pay License or Quit the "Washee" Business.

MR. YODER WILL ATTEND TO IT

Now That the Law Respecting Laundries Is Found to Be Constitutional, it Will Be Rigidly Enforced Henceforth.

City Treasurer Yoder will now proceed to bring the proprietors of Butte's Chinese laundries to time. It will be remembered that the license law charges steam laundries a license of $15 per month while "other than steam laundries" are charged $25 per month. This it was argued by the Chinamen, was class legislation. The steam laundries do tenfold the business they do, and therefore should pay a greater instead of a less license. It was tacitly understood by the authorities that washerwomen who also would come under the head of "other than steam laundries" should not be taxed at all, the Chinamen being the people the makers of the law were after.

Mr. Yoder was in doubt last summer whether to arrest the Chinamen who refused to pay this license or not. They made preparations to test the law as soon as they should be closed up or interfered with in any way. Learning, however, that a case to test the legality of the law was to be tried in Hele-na, he concluded to let the matter go until the supreme court should pass on it.

The decision on this case was render-ed by Justice DeWitt of the supreme court on Monday. The justice held that the license law relating to the li-censing of laundries is constitutional. The statement of the case at issue as given in the Independent is as follows: "The State, ex rel. Sam Toi, respond-ent, vs. E. S. French, county treasurer, appellant, from Lewis and Clarke county. Sam Tol, a Helena laundryman, offered the county treasurer $10 in payment of a license for one quarter for running a laundry other than a steam laundry. The county treasurer refused to accept it as the new codes provide that such laundries as Sam Toi is conducting must pay a license of $25 a quarter. The law also provides that steam laundries shall pay $15 a quarter. Tol made application for writ of mandate to compel the county treasurer to accept $10 in full. His attorneys alleged the license law was class legislation directed only against Chinese and was therefore unconstitutional. The district court granted the petition for a writ and the county treasurer appealed.

The supreme court in an elaborate opinion by Justice DeWitt holds that the district court erred in issuing the writ of mandate. The judgment is reversed and the case is remanded with directions to dismiss the writ.

This disposes of all doubt in the case and Mr. Yoder will now proceed to go after the Chinese laundrymen of the after the Chinese laundrymen of the city of Butte and compel them to pay the license demanded or go out of business. Cries of anguish from Chinatown may be expected in a few days.
